Medical Program Director
Dr. Michael Fine

for Rhode Island.

In addition to serving the RIDOC, Dr. Fine is a family physician and Managing Director of HealthAccessRI, the nation's first statewide organization making prepaid, reduced fee-for-service primary care available to people without employer-provided insurance. Fine practiced for 16 years in urban Pawtucket, R.I., and rural Scituate, R.I. He is the former Physician Operating Officer of Hillside Avenue Family and Community Medicine, the largest family practice in Rhode Island, and Physician-in-Chief of the Rhode Island and Miriam Hospitals Departments of Family and Community Medicine. He is Vice Chair of the Board of Crossroads RI, the state's major agency caring for the homeless, and Co-chair of the Allied Advocacy Group for Integrated Primary Care. He is convener and facilitator of the Primary Care Leadership council, a statewide organization which represents 75 percent of Rhode Island's primary care physicians and practices. Fine was the founder of the Scituate Health Alliance, a community-based, population-focused non profit, which made Scituate the first community in the U.S. to provide primary care to all town residents. Fine is a Past-President of the Rhode Island Academy of Family Physicians, and was an Open Society Institute/George Soros Fellow in Medicine as a Profession from 2000-2002.

Fine's professional life has been devoted to health care reform and the care of under-served populations. He has sat on a number of Legislative committees at the Rhode Island General Assembly; has been chair of the Primary Care Advisory Committee for the Department of Health, and sat on both the Urban Family Medicine Task Force of the American Academy of Family Physicians, and the National Advisory Council to the National Health Service Corps.

Dr. Fine, is coauthor, with James Peters, of The Nature of Health, (Radcliffe, 2007) the first health policy book since Medical Nemesis (Ivan Illich, 1975) and Mirage of Health (Rene Dubos, 1959) to consider the meaning of health as most people understand it, and to suggest the design a health care system that delivers the health care people want. Fine is also author of The Zero Calorie Diet (Red House Press, 2010) a look about the culture of excess through the lens of fasting.

In February 2010, Michael Fine, M.D. became Medical Program Director at the Rhode Island of Corrections, serving the only population in the state with guaranteed access to health care. The Health Care Services Unit cares for nearly 20,000 people a year and 3,300 people at any one time, with a staff of over 85 physicians, psychiatrists, mental health workers, nurses, and other health workers, has a budget of $23 million, and is a critical sentinel public health facility

THE RIDOC IS NOW RECRUITING PHYSICIANS

"I find my work with female inmates to be very rewarding and challenging." ~ Jennifer Clarke, M.D., M.P.H., Assistant Professor, Department of Medicine, Brown Medical School; Director of Health Disparities Research, Memorial Hospital

"The opportunities to diagnose and treat infectious diseases in corrections are immense. Ground-breaking research can be accomplished 'behind bars' that can have an enormously beneficial impact on the community."

- Timothy Flanigan, M.D., Professor of Medicine, Brown Medical School and Director of the Division of Infectious Diseases at the Rhode Island and the Miriam Hospitals and Brown Medical School

"I have been able to do some of the most rewarding work of my career at the RIDOC." ~ Josiah Rich, M.D., M.P.H., Professor of Medicine and Community Health and Director of the Center for Prisoner Health and Human Rights, Brown Medical School

"Many of the inmates have not had eye care on the outside for years. It's a great opportunity for diagnosis and I believe they get excellent care." ~ Francis X. Figueroa, M.D., Clinical Assistant Professor of Surgery (Ophthalmology), Brown Medical School
